A guide to finding books for children and young people with vision impairment

If you know a child or young person with vision impairment, this guide can help you find the right reading material for pleasure, information or school work.

Children's reading services

BookTrust is the UK's largest children's reading charity. We get millions of children reading every year. Children who choose to read and who read regularly are happier and healthier. This is why we support families to start sharing stories and books together from the earliest possible age.

In this guide you will find help and advice about reading; there may also be local services for blind and partially sighted people in your area which offer support. Please note, some services are free, others may charge a small fee.

Large print books

Guide Dogs produces customised large print fiction, revision guides and children's classics for home and school. You can order from a catalogue of over 1,500 titles.

0345 143 1000 Visit guidedogs.org.uk and search Custom Eyes in the search box.

RNIB offers electronic books via their Bookshare platform. Find more information on acquiring hard copy large and giant print books through their personal transcription service.

Visit your local library

By visiting your local library together, you can introduce your child to the joy of a good book – and it's never too early to start.

Your local public library may provide one or more of the following:

- picture books, large print books and audio books
- rhymetime sessions for babies and toddlers and reading groups for older children and young people
- activities such as the Summer Reading Challenge
- computers equipped with accessible technology such as speech and magnification software – great for school projects and homework or just browsing the internet for fun.
